During the year 2010, Sandyhills Golf Club, Glasgow identified the need to renew their course watering system with a modern automated system. At an early juncture, Souters Irrigation Services was identified as being one of a number of suitable contractors.

Following contact with their Sales and Technical Manager, Mr Robert Smith, a significant period of planning commenced. This included a site visit by one of the leading manufacturers who designed the system.

Several other contractors were consulted, none of which deviated from the original design and were invited to quote on a like for like basis.

With several tenders to hand, Souters Irrigation Services were selected as the preferred contractor. The factors impacting upon our decision included a combination of the quality equipment offered, time scale, evidence of other installations and a competitive pricing structure.

Installation commenced in January 2011, and progressed for a period of approximately nine weeks. This was on schedule and within the budgeted figure supplied. Throughout the installation, their staff were polite and courteous and at all times made every effort to minimise disruption to play. The quality of workmanship was evident to all our members, who regularly commented on the high standard of work being carried out and the quality of the fixtures and fittings being installed. Despite the installation being carried out during the winter months, damage to the course was kept to a minimum. Within two weeks of the substantial amount of pipework being completed, little or no evidence remained of any disruption to the course. Following completion, they ensured that our greens staff received full instruction in all aspects of the system operation.

We have no hesitation in recommending Souters Irrigation Services as a first class choice when carrying out irrigation projects. If you require any further information, please contact our club by telephone or post.
